The Strategic Communications team coordinates all external media enquiries

We are passionate about helping our communities access important factual news and information that relates to their health and safety.

Looking for an expert opinion? NSW Health Pathology has clinical and scientific experts across a range of fields from infectious disease, entomology, genomics, forensic medicine, DNA analysis and drug testing.

Please get in touch to request interviews, comments, background, and to access B-roll footage, photos and for permission to film at any of our sites.

Check out our newsroom for examples of some of the great people and critical services we deliver across NSW.
